We inint shoully to take hold of this matter and show the people the admirable skill of the leaders, which we think almost equals the unequalled be ginning of the fest moving Sheriff.

& T What a democratic President we have? What would the purely democratic papers have said in the days of John Quincy Ads-as, if he had travelled on an electioneering four, and his board hill for one short week at a taxern had a. mounted to six hundred and meventy five dellers? How the welkin would have rung with the cry of aristocrat from the democratic mouths of the now hireling administration papers, from one end of the country to the other had he have texed the people for his travelling expenses? But now it is all very well .. as the thing is done by a de ocratic President.

It would be perfectly proper for the people to pay the expenses of a President when travel is giving Dr Sewall of anti-Phrenology notoriwken Mr Van Buren undertaken a political two, endeavoring to fasten upon the country a policy and measures detrimental to her-best inshould be taxed, who feel and know that their he said that a man appeared better in lieing acbusiness prespects are injured by the continu- quainted with his subject before writing or ance of such a policy. Can this be paraible? Does Mr Van Buren, with a salary-of-twenty five thousand callurs a year, allow the prople to pay his tavern bills? Six hundred and a venty five dollars paid by such purposes, let us hear no more of our republicately abandoned. livanism. If a President who receives twenty five the sand dellars a year from the Treasury, cannot siferd to pay his tavern bills he had bettee not travel. Or if such bills ... wat be paid by orberalet it be done by subscription. The treasury ought-not to be drawn upon to pay the expenses of a political entertainment at a tayern. This six hundred and seventy five dollars was expended in dinners, wines, Segars, &c, tor Edwards, Ming, Slamm, Reill and their demagogue associates. That money expended for such a purpose should be drawn from the people, is an outrage for which this country is unra pared. If the President of the United States -kis-political-tour, chooses to live at the rate of an hundred deliars a day, let him in the name of delicacy and decemby, pay his una tatern bills. MR. EDITOR . I find that you call the attention of the play-lowing portion of our citizens to stupid to appreciate the excellencies of real tal and which portrays with great exactness the stage representations of the present day. With

"On each side of the stage are placed screens, at different distances, on which the objects of the acene are corr ely painted. Beyond this is a great curtain, bedaubed in the same manner, which extends from one side to the other, and is generally cut through to represent caves in the earth, and openings in the heavens, as the perspective requires. So that, it any person, in walking behind the scenes, should happen to brush against the cuitain, he might cause an earthquake so violent as to shake our s.d.s with laughter.

The akies are represented by a parcel of bluesh rags, hong up with lines and poles, like wet linen at the washer women's. The sun, for he is represented here sometimes, is a large candle in a lanthorn. The chariots of the gods and god esses are made of wood, and hung up by a cord like a swing; across the middle is placed a board on which the deity sits a straddle; and in the front of it hangs a piece of coarse canvass, bedaubed with paint, to represent the clouds which attend on this magnificent car. The bottom of this machine is illuminated by two or three stink ing, unsnuffed candles, which, as often as the celestral personage bustles about and shakes his wing, smoke him deliciously, with incense worthy such a districtu

This lady, who, with her attendants, was secking a reluge in Spain, was originally a Misthornson, of Cork, and when on her page from that city to Cadiz, on a matricannial expedition, she had been captured by a Monrish Corsair, and made a slave. Her first intended bridegroom find beine Me. Enes, un leiste mertchant settled at Cadiz, who during a visit which he had made to his native country, had become acquainted with, and attached to, Miss Thomson, who possessed great charms; but as some impediments sxisted to their immediate union, they parted, having first plighted their troth; and with the understanding that, at some future period, she should join him at Cadiz, as it would be insurious to his commercial interests for him to absent himself again from the field of his spec-เปลี่ยวกละ The lady, in fulfilment of her promise, saifed to join her future husband; but as just narrated her destiny was changed by the capture of the ressel she was in by a Marroquin corsair, which carried her in to Fez. Here Miss +homson was detained as a slave, and closely confined, whill a report of her uncommon beauty having reach ed the Emperor Mali Mahomed, she was by his orders, removed to the imperial palace, and every inducement held out to her to embrace the Mahomedan faith, and to accede to the Emperor's desire of making her his wife. Whether it was by persuasion, or from conviction that her fate was irrevocably decided, her various scruples were overcome, and she become the wite of Muli Mahomed, and subsequently the mother of two sons, who bore the names, the eldest of Muli Ismael, and the younger of Muli Mahomed. She was the most favored of her imperial hysband's wives, for he had many bedes; and the number must have been great as I have heard both from Mr. Clark and Sir Romans, who were at one time established as merchants in Morocco, that the Emperor Muli Mahomed actually formed a regiment composed entirely of his uwn sons, to the number of 523. most of their being blacks. Mr. Clark says that this wonderful fated lady, when he saw her in Spain, was dressed in the Moorish costume, and, strange as it appears, she seemed in all respecis to have adopted the tastes of her new country in preference to those of Christendom, for she afterwards returned to Morocco and there ended her days.

John M. The reasons he sosigns is, that the wiff innacies or developed and strengthened, as to these habits of life, which will have a tenden cy to keep the chest properly enlarged and give endure this species of exercise, when much re-The stage is provided with little square trap duced, the doctor has substituted the tube, (the operation of which .. e do not exactly under, pecifully requested to give him an early sail benefit of exerciae of the lungs, without bodily benefit derived from imbalation, is the enlargement of the chest, and increasing the volume of the lungs, by means of which the surfaces of uncers are brought in apposition and healed, and there can be no other possible way. Thuse therefore who are conscious of a tendency to consumption, instead of shutting up and taking medicine, should take the pure atmosphere ac much as possible, and in some way give five exercise to the lungs, raing no medicines but those of a simple character with a view to promote the general health. By such a course the doctor supposes that those 'who are predisposed to consumption or these who are in its incipient state, or where it has progressed even to ulcer ation, if it be confined to the tep of the lungs, with judicious treatment, in connexion with the while those whose lungs are diseased in the lower lobes, may expect partial relief only.
